Sure, that sounds good. She might also know of things that would be good for us to coordinate on. That's a relief on NEPA! Let me know if you're interested in seeing what I've pulled together re: project plan and outfalls summary. I have no idea how similar or different our dams are.

Hi Jenny-

Thanks for reaching out. Yes, I think it makes perfect sense to coordinate! I just got word this week about working on the Idaho permits upon Ex. 6 Personal Privacy (PP) so I still need to get up to speed with everything a bit more. I was actually going to try and find some time late next week to sit down with Dru after I look through the permit and some of her materials; should I include you to the meeting?

I don't believe dam operations are considered new sources, so NEPA isn't required.

Subject: Coordination on ID and WA hydro permits

Hi Jamey,

Let me know if you think it makes sense for us to coordinate our permits. I met with John and Dru last week, so I have a sense of where I'm going with the WA permits. They'll be very close to Dru's draft ID GP hydro permit, though I have to look at whether some of the dams need TSS limits. I think ESA consultation won't be as hard on the WA permits, but I think the 401 cert process may be harder in WA. If we're dealing with the same people, it might be good for us to make sure we're saying roughly the same things.

Lastly, do you think NEPA is an issue on any of these permits? Thanks, Jamey! - Jenny
